CAMPUS/BUILDING

One of Alabama's Premier Community Colleges

HISTORY OF SHELTON STATE COMMUNITY COLLEGE

Shelton State Community College is part of a state system of public colleges. This system originated in the Alabama Trade School and Junior College Authority Act enacted by the state legislature in May 1963. The governing board for the institutions within this system is the Alabama State Board of Education (ASBE) and the Chancellor, Alabama College System, Department of Postsecondary Education, is the chief executive officer of the system.

Shelton State Community College was established by resolution of the ASBE on January 1, 1979. That resolution combined two existing institutions: Shelton State Technical College, established in 1952, and the Tuscaloosa branch campus of Brewer State Junior College, an institution whose main campus was located in Fayette, Alabama. The Tuscaloosa branch campus of Brewer State had been in operation since 1972.

In 1994, Shelton State Community College consolidated with C. A. Fredd State Technical College, another public two-year college located in Tuscaloosa. The new institution created by the consolidation retained the name of Shelton State Community College, and the president of Shelton State was named president of the consolidated institution.

In April 1981, The Alabama State Board of Education placed the Alabama State Fire College with Shelton State Community College for administrative and fiscal agent purposes. In May 1988, through Act 88-663, the Alabama Legislature merged the Alabama Fire Fighters Personnel Standards and Education Commission and the Alabama Fire College.

Shelton State Community College moved into Phase I of the Martin Campus site, located in southwest Tuscaloosa County, in May of 1996. Phase II was completed in August of 1997. The Martin Campus and The Alabama State Fire College are pictured above.
